

BUTLER CONFESSES FORGING G. P. KIP'S NAME TO CHECKS

"I Needed Money, and I Got It," His Excuse for Forging Tradesmen.

Garret P. Kip's name has been forged to a number of checks recently, and last night his butler, Alfred Tranter, who has been employed in Mr. Kip's home, No. 131 East Sixty-sixth street, for some time, was arrested.

The arrest was made on complaint of H. H. Tyson & Son, butchers, at Forty-ninth street and Madison avenue, who on Tuesday cashed a check for $50 made payable to Tranter and apparently signed by Mr. Kip. The check was on the Bank of the Metropolis, No. 31 Union square.

Other complainants against Tranter are Dowe & Sellman, tailors at Fifty-third street and Sixth avenue, and Richard Weber, a butcher at One Hundred and Twentieth street and Third avenue.

It is alleged Tranter represented to the tradesmen the check represented his month's salary and he had no difficulty in cashing it, being well known in the stores. When he was searched in the East Fifty-first street station a check book belonging to Mrs. Kip payable to the butler and signed with Mr. Kip's name, were found. In his pockets also was a gold cigarette case marked with Mr. Kip's initials. Asked where he got this he said:

"I didn't steal it. I just took it." "How about these two other checks?" Tranter was asked.

"Well, I didn't get them over, did I?" he replied. Then, according to the police, he admitted having passed other checks to which his employer's name was forged. His excuse was:

"I needed money and I got it. That's about all."

Tranter is an Englishman about twenty-four years old. He was locked up, charged with passing forged checks. The arrest was made at One Hundred and Ninth street and Columbus avenue by Detectives Hauser and Mahoney of the East Fifty-first street station.

MUSS UP A "FRESHIE," "BEER NIGHTS" MAY GO.

Harvard Institution, Which Invariably Means Absorption of a Keg or Two, in Danger.

CAMBRIDGE, Oct. 16.—Having successfully dimmed the glory of the "Gold Coast" and established a French test for members of the varsity football team, Harvard now turns its attention to that good old college institution, "Beer Night."

A few evenings ago a rousing beer night was held in one of the college dormitories and a few freshmen got considerably mussed up and roughly handled. J. N. Bixby of Norwich, N. Y., a divinity student, has started a petition which requests the faculty to do away with beer nights. He has a hundred names, and it will be presented to the College Governing Board shortly.

It is charged that there is no big gathering of students at Harvard for social purposes unless a keg or two of beer occupies a prominent place in the festivities. Temperance drinks, on the other hand, are unobtainable, so a man must drink beer or go thirsty.
